WELCOME TO YOUR WILD ADVENTURE

What's wild about Cody Yellowstone?

Wild is in our nature. It's in our wildlife and wildflowers. In our wild days and wild nights. In our dream of the Wild West, and those who keep the dream alive.

Wild is our heritage and our soul. It's our parents and our grandparents. It's the explorers and trailblazers and outlaws who came before us. And it's the proud people who were here before them.

Cody Yellowstone was designed this way. By nature. By time. And by true originals with a dream. It was designed to be wild. To remain wild. And to attract those who seek the wild life. For the free spirits, wanderers, and adventurers. The nature lovers, thrill-seekers, and the relentlessly curious. For those who know just how much can be found when you get a little lost.

It's wild, wide open spaces. A place for kids to feel wild and free. A place where you can still experience the wild thrill of a rodeo and discover the wild spirit and proud history of the American West.

Discover Cody Yellowstone, Buffalo Bill's untamed playground. Forged by nature. Founded by mavericks. Treasured by those who keep it wild.

STILL WILD AFTER ALL THESE YEARS

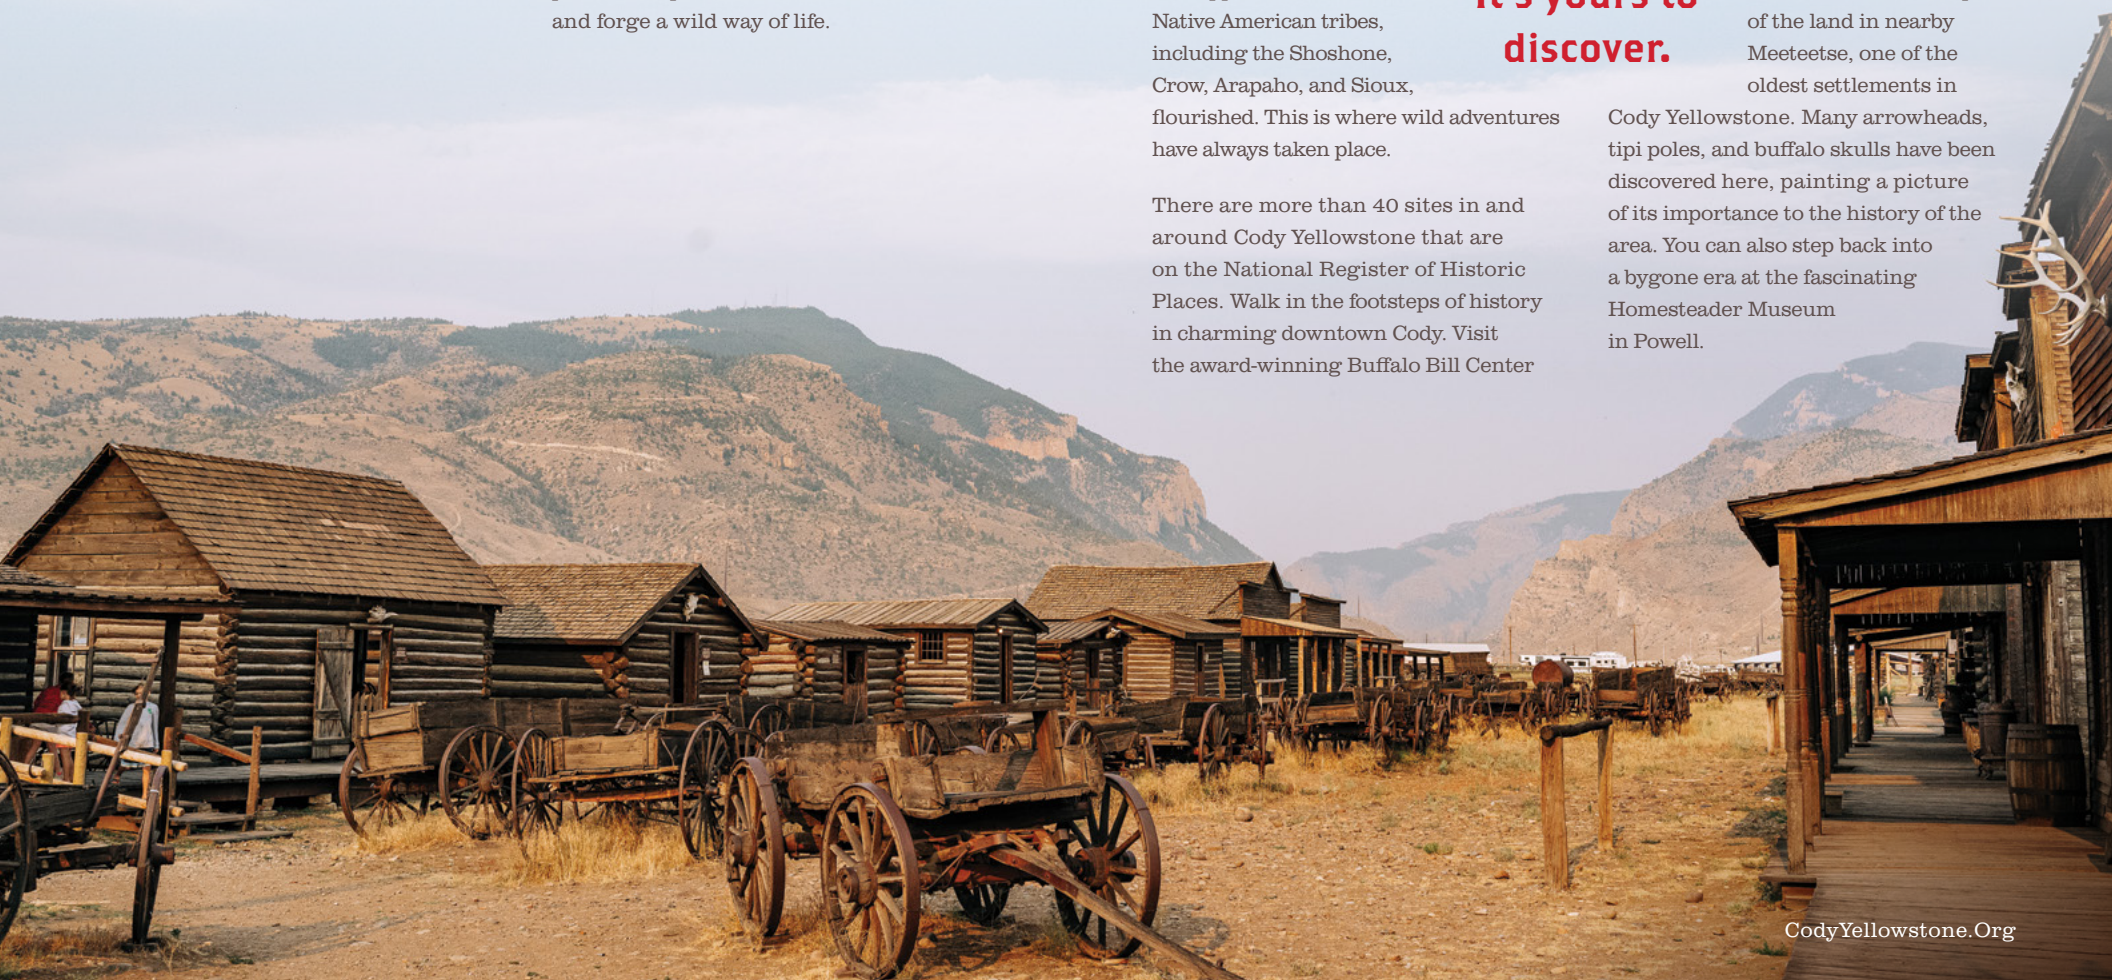
Want to create a destination as wild as Cody Yellowstone?

It's simple. You just need 150 million years of geological processes to form incredible mountains, canyons, and plateaus. Add some active volcanoes, geysers, and hot springs to create landscapes with otherworldly beauty. Throw in thriving bison, moose, bears, eagles, and other wildlife to maintain a rugged nature. And bring bold pioneers to pursue a brave dream and forge a wild way of life.

The town of Cody was founded by legendary cowboy showman Buffalo Bill Cody. He tamed the West and conceived his world-famous Wild West Show here. Mountain men like John Colter and Jim Bridger survived the elements and explored unmapped territories. Native American tribes, including the Shoshone, Crow, Arapaho, and Sioux, flourished. This is where wild adventures have always taken place.

History lives in Cody Yellowstone. It's yours to discover.

There are more than 40 sites in and around Cody Yellowstone that are on the National Register of Historic Places. Walk in the footsteps of history in charming downtown Cody. Visit the award-winning Buffalo Bill Center of the West, where five museums weave together history and myth, art and Native culture, firearms, and the nature and science of Yellowstone. Experience real cowboy culture at the Cody Nite Rodeo, which has been running every night in the summers since 1938. Feel the spirit of the land in nearby Meeteetse, one of the oldest settlements in Cody Yellowstone. Many arrowheads, tipi poles, and buffalo skulls have been discovered here, painting a picture of its importance to the history of the area. You can also step back into a bygone era at the fascinating Homesteader Museum in Powell.



A WILD TIMELINE

For thousands of years, intrepid explorers have been inspired by Cody Yellowstone's unparalleled beauty and rich natural wonders.

Discover the fascinating history of this welcoming western town set in a wild American landscape.

150 MILLION YEARS AGO
Processes begin to shape one of the earth's most geologically dynamic areas, now home to world-famous natural attractions and incredible biodiversity.

3,000 YEARS AGO
Archaeological evidence shows activity by nomadic Native American tribes in Yellowstone, which continued well into the 19th century. Tribes include Bannock, Blackfeet, Crow, Flathead, Nez Perce, and Shoshone.

1846
Future worldwide legend and Cody's founder, William Frederick "Buffalo Bill" Cody, is born outside Le Claire, Iowa.

2012
Buffalo Bill Center of the West is honored with the National Tour Association's "Favorite Museum for Groups" Award.

2022
Yellowstone National Park celebrates 150 years!

WELCOME TO OUR 2.2 MILLION-ACRE BACKYARD

It can be hard to tell where Cody ends and Yellowstone begins.

That's because the journey to Yellowstone is part of the experience. In fact, the trip between downtown Cody and Yellowstone was once called "the most scenic 50 miles in the world" by President Theodore Roosevelt. The entrance to Yellowstone's East Gate is a breathtaking route that will take you along the mighty North Fork of the Shoshone River, which charges through the volcanic Absaroka Range. Be on the lookout for grizzlies, black bears, deer, elk, moose, bighorn sheep, and bison as you venture toward the park on the Buffalo Bill Scenic Byway. Two miles before the East Gate of Yellowstone, explore Pahaska Tepee, the original hunting lodge built by Buffalo Bill Cody in 1904.

Or, if you prefer a high-mountain ascent into Yellowstone, take the Chief Joseph Scenic Byway into the Northeast Entrance of the park. This route will take you through soaring mountains, and we recommend you build in plenty of stops to take in the spectacular views. If you like wild adventures that lead you off the beaten path, take a hike through Clarks Fork Canyon and see a breathtaking waterfall in a 1,200-foot granite gorge.

Whichever way you travel from Cody Yellowstone into the world's first national park, it's sure to be a wild adventure to remember.

WILD. WIDE OPEN. WAITING TO BE DISCOVERED.

It's easy to be inspired when you're surrounded by majestic mountains, pristine rivers, and a sky so clear you can see for miles.

Cody Yellowstone is a wildly natural playground. Whether you like your adventures on land, in water, by air, or dangling from a granite cliff, there's something here to captivate you. You can explore three distinct mountain ranges—the Owl Creek Mountains, the Big Horn Mountains, and the Absaroka Range—with 46 peaks above 12,000 feet. Each has miles and miles of hiking and biking trails.

If water adventures are more your speed, there's the sparkling clear streams of the Clarks Fork, the Greybull, the Wood, the Big Horn, and the North and South Forks of the Shoshone River. These rivers are amusement parks for thrill-seeking kayakers and rafters. They're also home to world-class fishing for brown, rainbow, and cutthroat trout, and our expert guides can take you to off-the-beaten-path places only the locals know about.

What would an outdoor adventure be without a little wildlife? Nothing captures the adventure and spirit of the West quite like wild mustangs. The McCullough Peaks Wilderness Area is home to one of the last remaining herds of wild horses. Bring along your binoculars and camera to take home memories of these and other incredible creatures. If bison, birds, and bighorn sheep are more your thing, venture into the North Fork Highway or South Fork Road with cameras ready.

EXCURSIONS

A DAY TO DISCOVER WILD HISTORY

If you have only one day to visit Cody Yellowstone, here's how you make it the best day of your trip.

As you explore, remember that you are surrounded by history and adventure, because this is where the Wild West lives on.

MORNING

Wake up early and head to downtown Cody. Grab a stiff cup of cowboy coffee at one of the independent coffee roasters or a hearty plate of biscuits and gravy—because you've got a big day ahead of you.

First stop after breakfast: the Buffalo Bill Center of the West. You'll want to start here, because you could spend the whole day inside. It's actually five museums for one admission price.

Relive the amazing life and times of Buffalo Bill Cody and the West he loved. His journey took him from Pony Express rider to bison hunter to becoming the most famous person in the world—and this adventure is chronicled in the Buffalo Bill Museum. The Whitney Western Art Museum is one of the finest western art galleries in the country. The collection includes masterpieces by Fredric Remington and Charles M. Russell.

Don't miss Edgar Paxson's famous painting of Custer's Last Stand; this massive work of art took more than 20 years to complete. Then venture into the Plains Indian Museum, where you'll come to understand the Plains Indian people—their culture, traditions, values, and history.

Grab a quick bite for lunch at the Eatery or downtown before heading to the world-renowned Cody Firearms Museum, which has the most comprehensive collection of American firearms in the world, with more than 10,000 firearms and related artifacts. Finally, explore the Draper Natural History Museum, where you'll have an immersive experience into the Greater Yellowstone ecology and natural history.

AFTERNOON

Do as the settlers did and head west. Because you're about to feel what life in the Old West was really like when you stroll the boardwalks through Old Trail Town. On your way there, keep an eye out for Cassie's Supper Club on the left. Now a steakhouse and bar, this establishment was originally a brothel started by Cassie Waters—widow, madam, and respected businesswoman.

Now on to Old Trail Town, a collection of relocated historic cabins from the 1800s, including Butch Cassidy's Hole-in-the-Wall Gang hideout. Heads up: those aren't peep holes; they're bullet holes. Old Trail Town was voted "Best Tourist Attraction and Historical Site" by True West Magazine.

Daylight is burning, and there are still some stops. Head to the Cody Heritage Museum and step back in time to learn about the town of Cody, from its humble beginnings of dirt streets to the Burlington Railroad coming to town and an airport being built. Then it's on to the Irma Hotel in the middle of town. The historic Irma was built by Buffalo Bill to honor his beloved daughter. Venture into the restaurant and, if the spirit moves you, enjoy a cold one at the Cherrywood bar. This masterpiece was given to Buffalo Bill by Queen Victoria after she saw his Wild West Show. You'll be standing right where world-famous royalty like Prince Albert I of Monaco, the Prince of Wales and, of course, Buffalo Bill once stood. Enjoy a cowboy cut of Irma's famous prime rib before you head out to the next stop.

EVENING

Finally, if there's one can't-miss activity in Cody, it's the Cody Nite Rodeo. Since 1938, the toughest cowboys and roughest bulls around have tangled every night throughout the summers. It's the perfect way to cap off a night in Cody—and it's why we're known as the Rodeo Capital of the World.

We hope you enjoyed your day discovering the wild history of Cody Yellowstone.

A DAY FOR WILD OUTDOOR ADVENTURES

Are you the outdoorsy type? Enjoy collapsing in your tent with your hiking boots still on after a day of hard charging? Okay with getting a little dirt in your hair? Here's how you might want to spend a day in Cody Yellowstone.

But keep in mind, there are plenty of ways to have outdoor adventures here. You might wish to substitute any of these activities with rock climbing, mountain biking, fishing, trail running, or guided outfitter services—all of which are available in Cody Yellowstone.

MORNING

We're no strangers to getting up before the sun, which means a quality cup of joe isn't hard to find. Add a little pep to your step with breakfast at one of our small-batch coffee roasters. And be sure to clean your plate; you'll want a stomach full of fuel for the day ahead.

You can skip the morning shower. Today, you're going to hit the river. A seven-mile whitewater ride down the Shoshone River will be sure to wake you up and get your blood pumping.

Hire a guide to take you and your companions on a raft, blasting through rapids such as Colter Falls, Sitting Bull, Crazy Horse, and Corbett's Crossing. Or, if you prefer to be the captain of your own ship, you can rent an inflatable kayak and follow a guide down the river in a separate boat. After you've eddied out for the last time, dry off and catch your breath quickly, because there's still plenty of adventure to come.

CodyYellowstone.Org/Guide/Kayaking

AFTERNOON

You can balance out all the water you just inhaled with a lunch from one of our many health-savvy restaurants. Healthy, organic produce and vegetarian options are easy to find here. And one of the best ways to enjoy your meal is outside in a beautiful location. So grab some chow before you hit the road. Forget your rod and reel? Need a new set of hiking boots? Pop into one of downtown Cody's many shops to rent or buy equipment. You'll find what you need for whatever your day has in store. Take a short drive to Buffalo Bill State Park for a picnic next to our 8,000-plus-acre reservoir. The area is surrounded by breathtaking craggy mountains and forest, so your eyes can get a feast too. The State Park is open for fishing, boating, hiking, and camping, so if you brought your rod, cast your line and see what you catch. All filled up? Great. Head to the next item on the agenda.

You'll truly feel like you're reliving the adventures of the rugged West.

The most authentic way to experience the Old West is on the back of a horse. You'll truly feel like you're reliving the adventures of the rugged West. So saddle up and get ready to grab life by the mane. A guided horseback ride through the breathtaking Shoshone National Forest is a peaceful and exciting experience. You'll have time to imagine what life used to be like back before all of the hustle and bustle. Also, when you're on this quieter method of transportation, you're much more likely to come across wildlife. The Shoshone National Forest is home to grizzlies, bison, bighorn sheep, elk, and more—all waiting to be seen. So we hope you didn't forget to pack your camera. Once you've explored enough of the area and you're so hungry you could eat a horse, get off your horse and head back to town. It's time for dinner in Cody.

EVENING

There are dozens of places where you can grab a bite in Cody. But you've earned a beer. Not just any beer, but a quality pint of beer from one of our four—yes, four— breweries in town. We're fluent in IPAs, stouts, and pilsners, and we know how to brew them well too. And for food to pair it with, you can choose from our many food trucks, pizza parlors, steakhouses, and burger joints.

By now, the day is getting late. Catch the kind of sunset that you thought only existed in movies. Drive three miles to Colter's Hell. The area features fumaroles and hot springs, making it the perfect spot to see the sky aflame.

Up next is... rest. That's what you were hoping for, right? Well, hit the tent, your hotel room, or wherever you're hoping to get some shut-eye and pat yourself on the back for a good day spent exploring Cody Yellowstone's truly great outdoors.

A DAY FOR WILD CREATIVITY

When you're surrounded by this much wild beauty, award-winning creativity comes naturally.

Jackson Pollock was born here, Ernest Hemingway penned books here, and Frederic Remington, esteemed painter of the American Old West, spent time here.

This landscape has inspired artists, photographers, musicians, and poets for centuries.

Monolith – Kristii Melaine

MORNING

Wake up early and grab breakfast. There are plenty of diners and cafes to choose from, or you can treat yourself to pastries from one of our award-winning breakfast eateries. Either way, you'll want some energy for the day ahead.

After you've had your fill, head to one of the finest western art galleries in the United States: The Whitney Western Art Museum in the Buffalo Bill Center of the West. With more than 7,000 pieces to view, you could spend days looking at what's hanging in this gallery. So go in with a bit of a game plan. Some can't-miss pieces include Deborah Butterfield's horse sculptures, made from recycled materials and petrified wood, as well as Fritz Scholder's unique take on Native American art, which combines pop art with abstract expressionism. If landscapes are your thing, Thomas Moran captured the Yellowstone area with incredible beauty that's sure to inspire you before you head into the park. Other big-name artists include George Catlin, Alfred Jacob Miller, and Albert Bierstadt.

Once you've reached the point where you can't tell if that growling's coming from your stomach or if one of the taxidermied bears has come to life, it's time to leave the Buffalo Bill Center of the West and grab a bite to eat.

Image Source: Buffalo Bill Center of the West

AFTERNOON

There's a variety of restaurants to choose from in Cody. By simply walking through the historic downtown area, you're sure to find a delightful place to eat. You can choose a classic burger joint, but there's also Thai and even sushi if you're looking for something more exotic. Cody is sure to have something to delight even the most discerning taste buds.

After you've had lunch, continue walking through downtown. There are many galleries you can pop in to, but don't miss the Cody Country Art League. Established in 1964, the Cody Country Art League was built to bring together local artists by creating exhibits, encouraging education, and supporting the community through art.

Another must-see is the By Western Hands Museum and Gallery, which features original Thomas Molesworth furniture and other noteworthy western furniture designs. The museum's focus is to educate, promote and preserve iconic American functional art and allow its rich history to be shared and appreciated. Now it's time to hop in your car to see what's going on outside of Cody.

There's so much to see in the area, it's hard to choose where to go next. You have a choice: you can head north to an exhibit at the Heart Mountain Interpretive Center and Plaza Diane in nearby Powell, or you can head south to Meeteetse, where you can enjoy photography and artisan chocolate handcrafted by a cowboy.

Heart Mountain was a Japanese American Confinement Site during World War II. It serves as a reminder of a part of American history that is rarely discussed. But what makes it interesting from an art perspective are the traveling exhibits that show here.

By Western Hands

Some artists who have shown work here include Estelle Ishigo, who voluntarily lived at Heart Mountain and documented life for the Japanese, and renowned pop artist Roger Shimomura, who lived in a confinement site in Idaho during his formative years as a child.

Meeteetse is a small town that is big on history. It was where Native American chiefs would powwow, and because of its remote setting, it was home to watering holes enjoyed by the likes of Butch Cassidy, the Sundance Kid, and other Hole-in-the-Wall Gang members. But what you're here for is something different. The little town of Meeteetse, Wyoming, was put on the culinary map because of one man: Tim Kellogg, the Meeteetse Chocolatier. He's a cowboy who trained in crafting chocolate in Paris and London. His artisan truffles and delectable chocolates caused the New York Times to refer to Tim as "the love child of Buffalo Bill and Willy Wonka." His artistic take on chocolate often draws from the culture of Wyoming; he makes truffles flavored with sarsaparilla, prickly pear cactus, bourbon, and beer. They're every bit as tasty as they are intriguing.

Before you head back to Cody, enjoy some early western photography. Charles Belden was one of the first photographers to capture cowboy and ranch life on glass negatives, and his works are on display in The Charles Belden Photography Museum.

EVENING

Once you get back to town, it's time for art of the musical variety. We've got a few options for getting your foot stomping. You can go two-stepping at one of our many local bars or catch the Triple C Cowboys Band at The Cody Cattle Company on a summer evening. You could also hear one of our local performers playing live music at any of our downtown venues. No matter what you choose, a good time is guaranteed.

After the show, get some well-deserved rest. Hopefully you still have some chocolates left to enjoy as you review your inspiring day in the land of wild creativity in Cody Yellowstone.

WILDLY WELCOMING ACCOMMODATIONS

Even the wildest explorers need a good night's sleep. Cody Yellowstone offers a variety of warm and welcoming places to lay your head after a day of adventure.

For a classic Cody Yellowstone experience, you can stay at the historic Irma Hotel in downtown Cody.

If you're looking for more modern comforts, there are plenty of options right in Cody that allow you to walk to restaurants and entertainment in the center of town. If you'd like to get away from things, there are cabins and guest ranches and plenty of great camping spots. If you'd like a once-in-a-lifetime experience, you might consider a night in a tipi or a "glampy" sheepherder's wagon. Whatever your tastes or budget, you'll find the perfect basecamp for your Cody Yellowstone adventure.

Your first stop should be to visit CodyYellowstone.Org/accommodations to learn more.

QUIET SEASON

WILD IS ALWAYS IN SEASON

It's a secret known to those who treasure the wilder things in life: spring and fall are two of the best times to visit Cody Yellowstone.

The weather remains beautiful, and with fewer crowds, you have opportunities to do and see more.

If you love baby animals, you'll want to be here in spring, when you can see bison calves (affectionately known as red dogs), moose calves, and bear cubs learning the ropes from their moms. Then, in the fall, big creatures—like bears, elk, moose, and bighorn sheep—prepare for the winter and move into the lower valleys. Fall is also rutting season for elk, meaning it's an opportunity to hear the lovelorn songs of bulls as they search for mates—a unique experience to say the least!

There's something magical about Cody Yellowstone in the winter. The temperature drops, but we don't hibernate. When the landscape freezes over, cross-country skiing, snowmobiling, and ice skating all heat up. Our combination of waterfalls, mountains, and winter makes Cody Yellowstone home to some of the best climbing in North America.

Come and embark on your own extraordinary winter adventure. Snowmobile through fresh powder into the East Gate of Yellowstone. Listen to howling wolves and watch them run across snow-covered terrain. The Beartooths change from a scenic drive to a world-class, deep-powder snowmobiler's paradise with views only winter can provide. Snowshoe or ski across a wild wonderland where hot springs, deep snow, and crisp air coalesce to awaken your senses. Not many people ever experience things this amazing. Still, for the fortunate few who do, it's a memory that stays with them forever.

HOW TO GET HERE

WILD RIDE INTO CODY YELLOWSTONE

Interstates 25 and 90 allow an approach to Cody Yellowstone from the southeast and east. From the north, Montana 310 connects I-90 with Wyoming 120. From the south, take I-25 to Casper, then U.S. 120 to Thermopolis and Wyoming 120 to Meeteetse and Cody. From the east, Powell and Yellowstone country are approached by U.S. Hwy. 14-A and the scenic Medicine Wheel passage through the Big Horn Mountains.

Air transportation to the Yellowstone Regional Airport (COD) is provided by United Airlines (United Express).

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK

In-park lodging and camping accommodations are available throughout Yellowstone National Park. Facilities range from historic lodges and cabins to newer hotels and campgrounds. Guest units offer no televisions or radios. Of Yellowstone's 12 park campgrounds, seven are open on a first-come, first-served basis. Four campgrounds encompassing nearly 1,400 sites and Fishing Bridge RV Park may be reserved on the website or by calling Yellowstone National Park Lodges. Fishing Bridge RV Park has RV sites with full hookups and is restricted to hard-sided vehicles only. Free permits are required for overnight backcountry camping in the park and are available from backcountry offices and ranger stations in the park.

For reservations and information on lodging, dining, and in-park activities—such as trail rides, Old West dinner cookouts, stagecoach rides, scenic cruise boat tours, guided fishing trips, and interpretive tours, contact:

AMBASSADORS

#WILDWATCH AMBASSADORS

A place like Cody Yellowstone doesn't stay wild by accident.

It takes the work of local ambassadors who share a passion for the wild nature of Northwest Wyoming. We call them the #WildWatch because they keep an eye out for our authentic way of life. They're wild at heart, dedicated to carrying on the spirit of Buffalo Bill Cody and the ways of the Old West. Wild comes naturally for some. Others have to learn it. But embracing Cody Yellowstone's wild nature brings endless rewards. It's a good life for those who choose it.

Connect with us on social and follow #WildWatch to discover all that Cody Yellowstone has to offer.

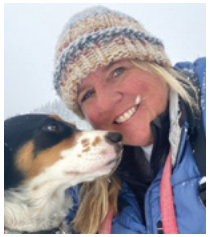
BEN & LINDSEY ANSON

Ranch Managers, Pitchfork Ranch

@PitchForkRanch

@PitchForkRanchBeef

For the Ansons, Park County is the only place that truly feels like home. Summers are spent trailing cattle through the hearty grasses of the Absaroka Mountains, and winters are best-enjoyed ice fishing, skiing, or with a hot cup of coffee by the fireplace. The views in Big Horn Basin are amazing, but the community is what makes it home: "Between the excitement of watching a branding with friends at the Pitchfork Horse Sale to shaking hands with our beef customers that come out to the ranch, the people you find here are just about as quality as they come."



AMY GERBER

Wildlife & Nature Photographer

@AGerber_CubCreekPhotography

@CubCreekPhotography

Amy recently retired from a 32-year teaching career, the last 26 of which were split between Jackson Hole and Cody, Wyoming. Currently, she works as a wildlife and nature photographer and as a guide in the Yellowstone region. Amy enthusiastically spends her new freedom out "on the road," capturing images documenting daily wildlife encounters and adventures in the amazing wild places around us. Living in Wyoming since 1993, she was drawn to this area because it represented one of the last great wild places in the lower 48 states, including the habitat for grizzly bears.

@WyoRiverTrips

@WyomingRiverTrips

Landon Blanchard and Elyse Guarino are two conservation and community-minded individuals with a combined 24 years of river guiding and outdoor education experience. Together, they own Wyoming Rivers Cooperative, a company that has been in the Blanchard family for over 40 years. Landon and Elyse are passionate about connecting communities to Wyoming's river and water resources in new and cooperative ways—building upon their combined outdoor skills and passion for water, wildlife, and land conservation.

DUSTY TUCKNESS

Professional Bullfighter

@Dusty_Tuckness

@OlTuck

Dusty Tuckness is a Cody Yellowstone local, hailing from the small town of Meeteetse, Wyoming. He rode his first steer at the age of six and was bullfighting in junior rodeos by the time he was 12. In 2006, he dropped out of school to join the rodeo full-time and is now the most decorated bullfighter in the history of professional rodeo. Dusty has won the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association's Bullfighter of the Year 10 times and the Wrangler National Finals Rodeo Bullfighter Award 13 times.
